These studies are a continuation of the earlier ones by Dr. Benson. They are delightful and fascinating reading, even for those who are neither musical nor students of hymns.
The selection and arrangement of the hymns are in historical succession, the story of each plainly shows the close association of religious thought with historical development. As Dr. Benson is regarded as the foremost American hymnologist, his statements may be accepted as authentic.
The second series is not only an authoritative book of reference, but it has the fascination of a good book of fiction.

This magnificent work, the most sumptuous, comprehensive, and authentic ever attempted, is not confined to a treatise on fine specimens in the possession of noble and historical families, but contains accounts of furniture in use by all classes from the beginning of Tudor times down to the last of the Georges. It may well be termed the definitive work on the subject. Of course the very notable and distinctive features are the size of the volumes and hence the size of the illustrations. The wealth and splendid character of these illustrations and the large scale on which they are given, make the work of supreme value for manufacturers of furniture, decorators, architects, and artists, who want it for practical purposes. No other book in existence has ever filled the place which this great work has made for itself.

"The Outline of Science"

A Plain Story Simply Told

By J. Arthur Thomson

Regius Professor of Natural History, University of Aberdeen

With about 800 illustrations, of which many are full page plates in color, including some double plates.
4 Vols. Royal 8°. 1700 pages. $18.00. Half Morocco, $38.00

This work gives the intelligent student-citizen otherwise called "the man in the street," a bunch of intellectual keys by which to open the doors which have been hitherto shut to him, partly because he got no glimpse of the treasures behind the doors, and partly because the portals were made forbidding by an unnecessary display of technicalities.

"Higher praise could hardly be given a book than to say it was written by the right man, at the right time, in the right way, and such a statement at the outset leaves the critic with little more to say, except in the way of reiteration, emphasis and enthusiastic acclaim.

Without qualification I make this assertion of Prof. Thomson's "Outline of Science." In popular character the work seems ideal. . . . Each subject is unhurried, carefully elucidated and linked logically to the theses preceding and following. . . . All these things Thomson describes in a fashion to thrill the imagination."—WILLIAM BEEBE in N. Y. Times.

"Reading the 'Outline of Science' is like reading a great poem or listening to a divine symphony."
From an enthusiastic reader.

News of Rei-Lee Books

By Margaret Turnbull

Emmietta Weston for years has been regarded by her towns-folk as the faithful half of an unfinished romance. A spinster at thirty-five, she realizes that she is a "left lady." A suddenly inherited fortune spells freedom from drab circumstances. No longer is Emmietta the ugly duckling. Cinderella decides to become a princess!

Miss Turnbull locates her whimsical romance in the village of East Penniwell. In this quaint setting, peopled by characters both old-fashioned and modern, the author develops the story of the belated happiness of the undaunted woman who gives name to this sparkling novel—The Left Lady.

With the sure skill of a gifted story-teller, Miss Turnbull has worked out the details of Emmietta Weston's quest of life. The result is altogether satisfactory. The thousands that read "Alabaster Lamps" will return eagerly for another story that is "as old-fashioned in flavor as home-grown strawberries on biscuit-dough short-cake" and as modern as a bobbed-hair flapper doing the Charleston.

White Water

By Robert E. Pinkerton

Swift, colorful action, adventure and romance, built upon a logical and interesting plot, make Mr. Pinkerton's new novel one that will satisfy readers of fiction who come into the book-store asking for "a good story." White Water is emphatically that. It is clean, vivid and clear-cut. It has the quality of human appeal that goes with a gripping narrative about real people, living deeply their battle of life.

Mr. Pinkerton's audience is well established by the record of his earlier successful novels, "The Test of Donald Norton" and "The Fourth Norwood." The locale of White Water is a departure from the scenes of the earlier stories—but still in the field of out-o-doors.

I'm Better To-day

Something Distinctly New

Under this title we shall publish July 1 a cheer-giving "Happy Record Book" compiled by Grace Gaige. It sparkles with wit and wisdom. It is decorated with unique and appropriate drawings by Elinore Blaisdell. It is an ideal gift to send to a friend to speed the dull hours of convalescence.

I'm Better To-day is a real novelty. There are record pages for doctors, nurses, friends—pages for books, flowers and gifts received. There are diet tables, weight tables and all manner of interesting information. There are poems, cheerful and lovely and gay little stories too.

We urge Rei-Lee customers to send for sample copies of I'm Better To-day. See page 3.

The Paths of Long Ago

By Wilbur D. Nesbit

For years requests have been made for a representative collection of verse by Wilbur D. Nesbit. This is to be realized this summer by the publication of The Paths of Long Ago, in which will be collected the cream of Mr. Nesbit's work of the past twenty years.

George Ade says, "A poet becomes a good and useful poet when he is admitted to the scrapbooks. Wilbur Nesbit is to be envied because he has received scrapbook recognition."

The Paths of Long Ago will be of interest to a numerous company of admirers, who have followed Mr. Nesbit's writings with real appreciation.

Santa Claus in New Garb

We are enthusiastic over a new story about Childhood's Patron Saint. This is The Curious Cruise of Captain Santa, written and illustrated by Ruth Plumly Thompson and John R. Neill. Here is a story about Saint Nick that will sell in July as well as in December. Quaint and humorous text, illuminated with delightful pictures in colors. Format similar to the Skeezix Books. Popularly priced at one dollar. Ready July 1.

New Building Estimators' Handbook

By William Arthur

5 by 7 Inches 1050 Pages 467 Illustrations 600 Tables Bound in Flexible Fabrikoid Gilt Edges Price $6.00

This standard guidebook for estimating building costs stands out as one of the most valuable "tools" ever offered to the building trades.

Actual cost records, with over 600 detailed tables, taken from residences, stores and flats, office buildings, warehouses, manufacturing buildings, railroad shops of all kinds, schools and other structures are to be found in this useful and comprehensive reference book.

One of the most valuable features of the book is the complete set of tables which cover all phases of estimating in the entire structural field.

In every sense the New Building Estimators' Handbook is an understandable, complete and up-to-date guide that may truthfully be regarded as a worthwhile contribution to the field of carpentry and building.

Third Revised and Enlarged Edition

Practical Structural Design In Timber, Steel and Concrete

By Ernest McCullough, M. Am. Soc. C. E.

6 by 9 Inches 400 Pages 230 Illustrations Substantially Bound in Cloth. Price $4.00

For the practical man—the man who has not spent years studying higher mathematics—this work gives a clear working knowledge of every detail of the subject. It is a complete practical treatise on the mechanics of materials, mechanics of structures and structural design, written in plain language, without troublesome mathematics. For the self-tutored man no better book has ever been written.

The simplicity of the mathematics used, together with the prominence given to graphical methods makes it as useful to the man who occasionally designs a building as to the detailer who has daily need for a reference book.

The problems of building construction are fully treated, from the design of the floor joist and small posts to long span trusses and the largest columns.

New Revised and Enlarged Edition

New Metal Worker Pattern Book

By George W. Kittredge and Associates
New Revised Edition, Including Some New Problems
By Frank X. Morio

9 by 11 Inches Cloth Bound 520 Pages 895 Illustrations Price $6.00

A complete course of instruction in the modern methods of developing and cutting patterns for all kinds of sheet metal work. The fundamental principles underlying practically every problem likely to come up in practice are so clearly explained that no knowledge of arithmetic or drawing is needed to understand these essentials and to apply them in the development of patterns by the parallel line, conical or flaring, and irregular or triangulation systems. It is an excellent book for home study for the apprentice as well as a practical work of reference for the mechanic, foreman and pattern cutter. The solution of some of the most difficult and unusual problems may be found almost at a glance. In this new edition many new problems have been added including problems for laying out automobile guards, fenders, skirts, hoods and other automobile sheet-metal parts.

INTERNATIONAL CRITICAL COMMENTARY on the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. Planned and for years edited by the late Prof. C. A. BRIGGS, D.D., in America, and Prof. S. R. DRIVER, D.D., and Rev. ALFRED PLUMMER, D.D., in Great Britain.

This Commentary is international and inter-confessional, and is free from polemical and ecclesiastical bias. It is based upon a thorough critical study of the original texts of the Bible, and upon critical methods of interpretation. It is designed chiefly for students and clergymen, and will be written in a compact style. Historical and Archaeological questions, as well as questions of Biblical Theology, are included in the plan of the Commentary, but not Practical or Homiletical Exegesis. The volumes constitute a uniform series.

"With the wind of God in her vesture, proclaiming the deathless, ever-soaring spirit of man."—Locke

In a picturesque setting in the northern Tennessee mountains there is a cycle of activities co-ordinating and combining their energies to manufacture for J. H. Sears & Company from the raw materials a fully finished book.

Here is a pulp mill, a paper mill, an enormous printing plant, a cloth mill, a tannery, a bindery, a box mill and an immense warehouse with railroad sidings upon which are cars that are carried to the furthermost corners of the American continent—an aggressive group of industries intent upon one purpose, to produce the highest quality of books at the lowest prices.

The publications of J. H. Sears & Company, Inc. are sold F.O.B. Kingsport, Tenn.

I SEEK THE TRUTH

by EX-CROWN PRINCE WILLIAM OF GERMANY

Here is a book which immediately takes its place as an important historical document. It constitutes one of the significant contributions to world knowledge about the Great War which has appeared since the Armistice. This book will prove a distinguished source of information which will be used by future generations and historians to conclusively and ultimately establish the responsibility for the bringing on of the Great War.

This book, no matter what your opinion may be as to the guilt of Germany in the Great War, must command your attention. It interprets, as no other document published since the War, the viewpoint of the German people throughout the great conflict and today, eight years later. The reader will see in this book a thoroughly sincere endeavor by the Ex-Crown Prince to seek the unprejudiced truth as to the hotly discussed questions of the War and a zealous desire to clarify them for the sake of future generations.

Octavo, 370 pages, frontispiece and colored jacket.

I AM A WOMAN-AND A JEW

by LEAH MORTON

This is the confession of a woman's soul. With a gripping sincerity, the writer states the elemental problems that face the modern Jew in the terms of one woman's life. Never has a book been written with such rugged and searching self-analysis as this volume.

It reveals a human being, because she happened to be a Jew, hampered in all directions—in her ambitions, in her social life, in her mating, in her business career and in her desires for her children —by the prejudices existing in modern American society, one for the other, between Jew and Gentile. With her life immeasurably complicated by these prejudices, this woman speaks—and she pens a document that becomes the Magna Charta of the Jewish race. On the final page of her book she voices probably the only solution possible of this problem steeped in centuries of tradition.

It is honest to the core. Vivid and dramatic and tapping the very well springs of humanity, this book will interest Jew and Gentile alike. It will be quickly regarded as one of the most important contributions looking to a solution of the problems rising out of the daily contact of Jew and Gentile.

Octavo, 368 pages, jacket in colors.

THE PHILIPPINES-A TREASURE AND A PROBLEM

by NICHOLAS ROOSEVELT

The Philippines offer an immensely complicated and interesting problem. The question of the eventual disposition of the Philippines is made highly intricate by the variety of languages spoken in the islands, the antagonism between the races, the geographical situation of the units of the Philippine archipelago, the degree of ability of the Philippines to govern themselves, and the traditional viewpoint of the Filipino to representative government.

The book devotes itself to a study, analysis and careful consideration of the important problems facing the people of the United States and their representatives in deciding what is to be done with the Philippines. It is a book on the contemporary problems and offers the latest survey of conditions in the islands.

Mr. Roosevelt spent many months in the Philippines under unusually favorable conditions for observation, and with an excellent opportunity to obtain the viewpoints held by the leaders of the different political factions in the islands. The author is a trained observer and he has the rare faculty of truly weighing values.

JAZZ

by PAUL WHITEMAN

The King Himself Now Tells the Truth about Jazz

To Whiteman's magic interpretation of syncopated rhythm is due the enormous popularity of Jazz. This book is Whiteman's autobiography. He tells how he grew up with jazz, and his adventures as the tuneful crusader of the new music. He relates for the first time the complete story of Jazz,—how it was brought from East Africa to America by slaves in the 17th Century. Its enormous growth from a small colored band playing on the streets of New Orleans in 1915 till today—eleven years later—in the United States alone there are 300,000 members of Jazz dance orchestras.

Whiteman reveals his secrets of orchestration, which have made him the King of Jazz and which give the captivating, seductive melodies that make Jazz so fascinating. He also tells what Jazz means to world music. In Jazz, America has the beginnings of its own national movement in music.

THE ACTOR IN ROOM 931

by CYRIL MAUDE

A Delightful Story by the Creator of "Grumpy"

Cyril Maude has created in this book a character as human, as true to life and as lovable as his famous "Grumpy" which he portrayed so vividly on the stage.

Written in collaboration with Charles Hanson Towne, this is the unusual experiences of an elderly actor in a hotel. Cyril Maude, through forty odd years of his distinguished stage career, has attained fame for his vivid, human interpretations of the characters of old men. It was to be expected, therefore, that when Mr. Maude came to write a book he would elect to weave his story lovingly around such a character as "Old Silver."

With the same sense of illusion that he was able to bring into his stage roles, he writes a tale intermingling pathos with humor and romance with sentiment. Those who enjoyed Cyril Maude as a great actor may now enjoy him as a master story teller.

A MOUNTAIN BOYHOOD

by JOE MILLS

This is an epic of self reliance. In this true story, Joe Mills relates how at an early age he started out boldly to penetrate the wild Colorado Rockies. He tells how he obtained food and habitation; he tells of his contest with rugged nature; with the wild life of the mountains; how, through summer and winter, he provided for himself. It is a thrilling, brave story, this account of a small boy put on his own resources in this great wild region.

Running through the entire book is a remarkable strain of appreciation for nature, for its beauty and its majesty. It tells of the author's love of animals, his great reliance upon his faithful dogs with whom as his only companions he lived in lonely cabins in the mountains.

This book will appeal to every boy, because it will inspire his imagination. He would love to do just the things and live just the life that Joe Mills did. The boy will read the careful accounts of the daily life of this lad, unafraid—how he tramped over the mountain trails; his exciting and dangerous adventures. THE FAITH OF THE LITTLE SHEPHERD

by GRACE ADELE CATHERWOOD

An Appealing Story of Staunch and Enduring Faith

This is the story of little blind Bartimaeus, in whom is born a great faith in the presence of the Christ Child lying in the manger. This faith, abiding in the beautiful spirit of this little shepherd boy, is sustained through the years until Bartimaeus meets again the Christ grown to manhood. Here in a sublime and solemn moment the Saviour, as portrayed with such stately vividness in the New Testament, touches the leaden eyelids of the shepherd and bids him, "Go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole."

The author writes under a spell of exalted sincerity, and is imbued with a fine reverence for the beauty and dignity of her story. She makes in little Bartimaeus a poignantly appealing figure, whose sufferings and subsequent joys create a deep emotional responsiveness in the heart of the reader.

Shining over this beautiful story, giving it a touch of the celestial, is the divine figure of Christ. Told in language which rings as pure as the measured notes of an organ, it is a remarkably arresting epic glorifying great faith.

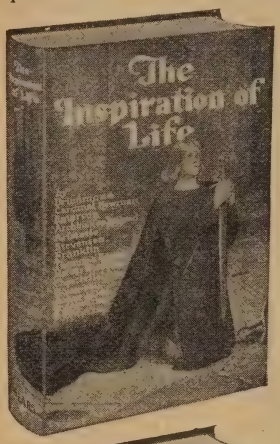
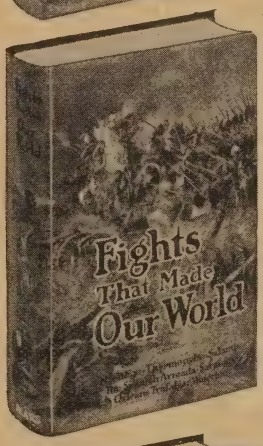
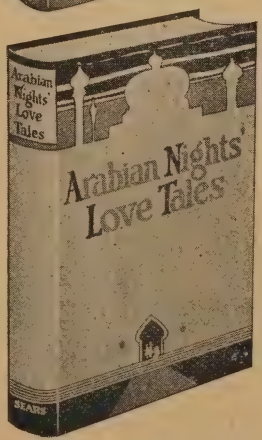
"Old Wine in New Bottles"

No man also having drunk old wine straightway desireth new; for he saith, the old is better.
—St. Luke, V. 39.

The Apostle having told us we must not put new wine in old bottles adds the verse quoted above. That is the purpose of The Royal Collection.







Each volume of the Royal Collection has an individually designed jacket in rich colors.

In literature the old wine is always better than the new, because it has lived for a hundred or a thousand years, fighting its way decade by decade, century by century, through contemporary writings, traveling gallantly onward, while the latter, too weak to stand the pace, fall by the wayside.

Much of this fine old wine is missed by many of us today because it is covered up in large and dusty tomes amidst other matter of less interest to present day minds. Hence certain portions of these historic works that sparkle and shine with undiminished vigor have now been grouped into these new volumes. Every one of them has stood the tests of time; every one of them is interesting and alive to us today, always new, always helpful, always brilliant.

The Craft and Malice of Woman

In this volume one will find piquant, saucy, amusing tales. These stories might have been written yesterday and laid in New York instead of in Bagdad a thousand years ago. They show that the woman of today practices the same guile, is able to turn man around her finger and to cover her tracks quite as deftly as her oriental sister. Perhaps these stories with their delightful naivete and sophistication would have been considered a bit too racy and pungent in the Victorian Age. But today, which is no more an immoral age than the one preceding it, we take our enjoyments with much of the candor of the oriental. This volume will be a rare source of entertainment to those who enjoy reading which is out of the ordinary. It has a striking two color jacket which attractively carries out the spirit of this delightful collection.

Here is a cook book containing 500 practical, tested receipts, which sells at a price within the means of every housewife. For this volume there has been gathered the best receipts used by the most skillful home cooks. But many of these receipts are now available to the average household for the first time by the genius and experience of Mrs. Caldwell in making them economical without sacrificing their appetizing qualities. The result is a cook book which by this happy combination of the practical and scientific in good cooking will enable the average family to have the most delicious foods prepared at an economical cost. To bring a large number of the highest quality receipts heretofore found only in the high priced cook books, within the pocketbook of the careful housewife has been the aim of the author.

This volume is bound in a white cloth of good quality, specially treated so as not to show finger marks or grease stains. It is printed on a heavy book paper in good, easily read type from new plates. A vivid poster jacket in colors (a unique feature in cook books) adds greatly to its attractiveness and selling qualities. This book has a bright, stained top and the covers are stamped with a pleasing and appropriate design in a rich, bronze blue. This volume measures 4¾ x 7⅛ inches, and contains about 128 pages, with complete index. Tables for cooking, food values (Calories Table) and weights and measures are in an ornamental border as endsheets in the front and back of the book. Sears Juvenile Classics

Here is an edition of standard Juvenile Classics which will fascinate the younger reader. These forty volumes are just what boys and girls want their books to be—bright, cheery and clever. The titles have been selected with much care and embrace a fine range of the widest selling and the best liked of the famous classics for children and young people.

These volumes have a brilliant jacket printed in four colors, depicting the familiar and beloved characters of famous children's stories passing in review. This pageant idea has been carried out with much originality, and is a most effective piece of pictorial jacket work. This picture is found again in a rich duo-tone sepia as end sheets in the front and back of each volume. This picture, which has proved of much interest to children, is thus preserved as a permanent feature of the book. In the panels on these end sheets are appropriate children's verses.

The covers of the volumes have an all over design stamped in red and deep bronze blue on a light tan cloth, making an unusually attractive combination of color values. This design is in keeping with the best taste in the finer books for children. The volumes are bound in sturdy, stiff covers, and will stand the hard usage a child gives to books. They have brilliant red stained tops. Each book is printed in large type from new plates on a fine quality of heavy white book paper. This year, the size of these volumes has been increased to a full standard twelve mo. measuring 5 inches wide by 7⅜ inches high and one inch thick. Each book contains about 256 pages.

The price of these volumes (50c) is so low that they are within the reach of every mother and father who want their children to enjoy the great stories of Juvenile literature in a particularly attractive form. These books possess many of the distinctive features heretofore found only in the finer Juvenile publications at a considerably higher cost.

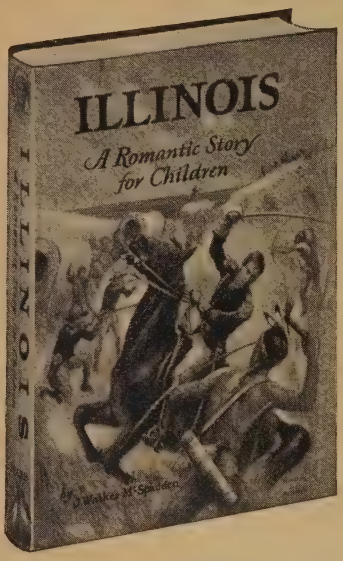
The Romantic Stories of the States for Young People

By J. WALKER McSPADDEN

Illustrated by HOWARD L. HASTINGS



This picture shows the handsome four color jacket for "Illinois." The volume for each state will have its individual striking colored jacket.

This series presents a new and exceptionally interesting idea in books with an historic background for young people. With the events and facts of history thoroughly accurate the author at the same time writes with a keen sense of the story teller and stresses to the fullest the romantic and dramatic possibilities of his theme. The result is a group of books dealing with the history of the states in story form which are approved of by educators and which for their interest and fascination to the younger reader, they will be hard to equal.

An old trapper or an old settler, tells the stories and tales of adventure which are the important turning points in each state's history, while the young people sit about, ask questions and listen. These stories are told after the manner of the well beloved Uncle Remus. For each of the original thirteen states, the story is told from the time the first white man put foot within its territory until the Revolutionary War. For the other states, the story is brought down to the time of a state's admission to the Union.

A not unimportant purpose of these books is to create in the minds of the sons and daughters of a family, a love of the native state of their parents or grandparents, from which the family moved away, and also to foster in the younger mind a love and knowledge of this new state in which they now live.

Each volume has a four-color jacket by the well known artist, Howard L. Hastings, illustrating a significant historic event in the story of the state. The same picture is also carried as the inlay and the frontispiece in the volume, and is thus retained as a permanent part of the book. These volumes are also illustrated with a large number of black and white full page and half page pictures, together with a decorative title page by the same artist. The end sheets are a reproduction of a hundred year old map showing the original trails, forts, etc.

These books are bound in a fine quality of green pattern cloth with a pictorial inlay on the front cover. The ornamental design and title on the back of the books, together with the frame around the inlay are stamped in gilt. They are printed on a good quality of white paper in large, readable type from new plates. Each book measures 5¾ x 8¼ inches and has a bright stained yellow top.

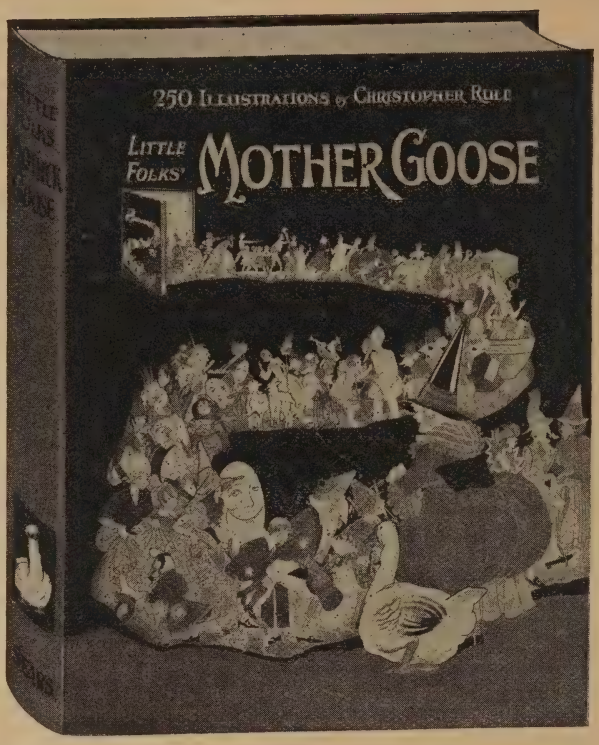
Little Folks' Mother Goose



With 250 Illustrations by Christopher Rule

This new, beautifully illustrated edition of "Mother Goose" brings fresh and startling delights to boys and girls. We find here those beloved rhymes which mothers and fathers in each generation fondly read to their children. This edition has been compiled with much care, and it will prove most satisfying in its arrangement, wording and editorial qualities.

This edition is made the more charming and delightful to the child because the pictures are drawn with a new cleverness. These illustrations have the appeal of the old famous editions, and at the same time they are modern in style and belong to the present day. There are 250 pictures in this fine book, many of them full page drawings. These were drawn specially for this edition by the well known artist, Christopher Rule.

A particularly attractive feature of this edition is its handsome jacket printed in four bright, contrasting colors. The artist has cleverly shown in this picture the beloved characters of "Mother Goose" marching by in pageant array. The child will pore over this picture with the greatest fascination, picking out the seventy-five familiar characters on this jacket.

This picture that appears on the jacket is found again in its same brilliant colors as the inlay on the cover. Thus it becomes a permanent charming feature of the book. This beautiful edition also has colored pictorial end papers of original design, and a decorative title page.

This volume is bound in a red pattern cloth which handsomely sets off the inlay. The book also has a brilliant red stained top. It is printed on unusually good paper from new plates. The type has been chosen for size and style so as to be easy and pleasant for the child to read. This is an extra large book, measuring 9½" wide by 11¾" high. The rule around the inlay on the front cover and the design and lettering on the backbone is stamped in gilt.

This book contains probably more pictures than have ever been put into a volume of "Mother Goose" to sell at this price. It will prove the outstanding edition of "Mother Goose" in its attractiveness to children.

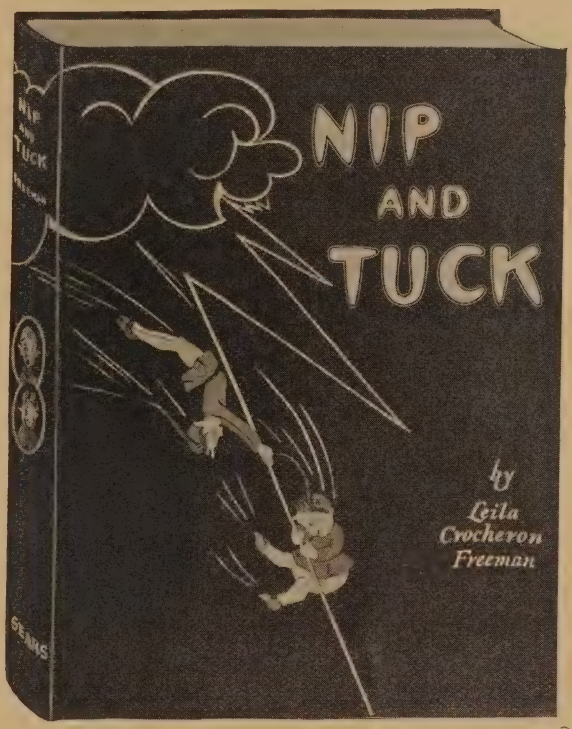
Introducing the Two Most Interesting and Fascinating Characters in the Children's World



Containing 10 Full Page Four-Color Illustrations and 40 Black and White Text Illustrations by the Author.

Much too seldom for the delight of children is it possible for a publisher to offer a book which affords the real joy that NIP AND TUCK gives alike to younger boys and girls. Surprising in story and sparkling in the cleverness and bewitching quality of its illustrations, NIP AND TUCK, those fascinating little sprites, will command before the end of the season a whole army of happy child readers. It has to a bounteous degree the far flung imaginative quality and the delightful absurdities that catch the fancy of the child. Its bright, striking appearance will make every child its glad possessor. This book is fully illustrated with ten full page pictures in color, and a generous number (over forty) of black and white pictures. This volume is extra large in size, measuring 9½ x 11¾ inches. It bulks three quarters of an inch, and contains about 200 pages. It is bound in a fine quality of orange colored cloth with extra heavy covers. This book is printed in large type from new plates on a particularly fine quality of white book paper. The type page has pleasing proportions with wide margins, and the type is unusually large, being 14 pt. FICTION

THE LAST DAY

By Beatrice Kean Seymour

Author of Invisible Tides, Intrusion, The Hopeful Journey, Unveiled.

In England THE LAST DAY has been figuring steadily as a "best seller."

On the last day of a holiday at the seashore Hermy must make a great decision on which her own fate and that of two men hinges. Over the whole day broods suspense as to the outcome, though the action is keen and swift.

It is easily understandable why the book should be a best seller. It has glitter, fire, poignancy, added to the other qualities that made Mrs. Seymour's earlier works "stand out from the contemporary host," and the main woman character, different from the grand-style heroines in fiction, takes a strange hold on the reader. $2.00

SLINGS AND ARROWS

By Mary Agnes Hamilton
(Iconoclast)

Author of J. Ramsay MacDonald: Man of Tomorrow, J. Ramsay MacDonald 1923-1925, England's Labour Rulers, Margaret Bondfield, Mary MacArthur.

Pauline is seen through the eyes of her mother-in-law, who sees her exactly as she is not, could, in fact, never understand so fine a character as Pauline, of whom she is practically the opposite. Misunderstandings accumulate; Pauline's whole happiness, her whole life is threatened.

When Mary Agnes Hamilton, under the pseudonym of "Iconoclast", astonished America with her psychological penetration as the biographer of J. Ramsay MacDonald, she already had several admired novels to her credit. $2.00

INSPECTOR FRENCH AND THE CHEYNE MYSTERY

By Freeman Wills Crofts

Author of The Cask, The Groote Park Murder, The Pit-Prop Syndicate, Inspector French's Greatest Case.

Crofts has outdone himself. In this book he has surpassed his stunning achievements in THE CASK and THE GROOTE PARK MURDER. He shows the skill of a wizard in keeping the reader mystified up to the very end of the plot. $2.00

LOVE AND LIFE

By Helene Stoecker

This novel deals with the eternal difference of the love-life of the two sexes, in a simple love-story of one man and one woman. Dr. Stoecker touches upon the profoundest motives; but her sensibility is so delicate that she writes of things usually left unsaid in a way that can never give offence. One does not read the book—one lives it. It is a clarion call to both men and women to rouse them to a happier sex future. $2.00

SPRINGBOARD

By Robert Wolf

The story not merely of a young man's growth and development, but also a history of the main intellectual currents in American life, from the end of the Victorian era to the outbreak of the World War. It is a full and sympathetic study of the typical American business man, and his typical liberal club-woman wife. $2.00

JUVENILE

GAWALLOPUS

By Elsie Borg

The jolly story of that funny old horse called "Wopus" for short, with a head like a donkey's, feet nearly as big as an elephant's, and a tail like a whisk-broom. Patrick, his master, and Patrick's wife, Bridget, love the horse. So will every child and every grown-up who reads about his surprising exploits. Illustrated

Probably $2.00

POLITICAL HISTORY

THE SPLENDID STALEMATE

By Herbert Wescott Fisher

"Deals with the fundamental problems of war, peace and international relations. Mr. Fisher's book should be read by every American who hopes to face our international problems with intelligence and candor."—Harry Elmer Barnes, Professor of Sociology at Smith College.

Probably $2.50

SOCIOLOGY

THE RACE MYTH

A Study of the Notion of Race

By Theophile Simar

The famous Belgian historian and anthropologist makes an authoritative study of the theories and notions which prevail as to the question of race and racial differences. He reaches some startling conclusions, among them that differences in races proceed from psychological processes rather than from an anthropological basis.

Delightfully readable, the solid argument is set forth with such animation that the reader is quite naturally caught and carried along. $4.00

POETRY

SPARKS AND EMBERS

By Edna Denham Raymond

Here is no decadence but the expression of a healthy fancy. The winds that blow upon these pipes are as clear and sweet as the breath of southern laurel or the clean fragrance of northern pine.

Meredith Nicholson—"Edna Raymond's poems show great delicacy of feeling and an elusive flower-like charm that is quite indefinable." $1.75

OLD "PROF" DICKSON AND OTHER POEMS

By Carl Holliday

Author of The Cotton Picker and Other Poems, etc.

A book of American verse. The author is Dean of College of Arts and Sciences of the University of the City of Toledo, Ohio. $1.50

7 P.M. AND OTHER POEMS

By Mark Van Doren

Author of Spring Thunder and Other Poems.

Joseph Wood Krutch in The Saturday Review of Literature—"Mr. Mark Van Doren belongs to the group of those who choose to deal with things seemingly calm not because they fly from passion, but because by discovering it in unsuspected places they reveal the boundless excitement which all living affords those who are capable of appreciating it. It is his peculiar distinction to have written major poetry upon what seems to be minor themes." $1.75

DEW AND BRONZE

By Robert P. Tristram Coffin

Author of Christchurch. $1.75

GHETTO GUTTERS AND OTHER POEMS

By David George Plotkin

A mighty procession of boisterous, indomitable life pummels its way through this epic of the pavements. $2.00

THE PAMPHLET POETS

EDITED BY AN ADVISORY COMMITTEE CONSISTING OF

John Erskine, Louis Untermeyer and Joseph Anthony

Hughes Mearns—GENERAL EDITOR

5½ x 7½, 32 pages, pamphlet self-cover $0.25 each

UNDER THE editorship of a distinguished committee of critics and poets, this series of PAMPHLET POETS makes available the best of our American poetry in a popular-priced series of beautiful reprints.

Each pamphlet will consist of the most enduring and most representative selected verse of one eminent poet. The first group of pamphlets will be published in the Fall of 1926 and will include the following:

(Now Ready)

Walt Whitman	Elinor Wylie
Ralph Waldo Emerson	Nathalia Crane
Carl Sandburg	Edgar Allan Poe

[Six to ten more to be released each year]

The text is set in fine, large type on excellent paper. The highest craftsmanship has been used in the design and production of the publications. Each pamphlet includes a brief biography of the poet, a critical estimate of his work, and a complete bibliography.

Because of the unimpeachable taste and care shown in the selection, because of their typographical beauty and compact convenience, because of the most attractive popular price, these pamphlets, presenting the outstanding poetry of our greatest poets, should appeal to that "audience interminable" of which Whitman spoke.

THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY

by Will Durant, Ph.D.

AUTHOR OF "PHILOSOPHY AND THE SOCIAL PROBLEM," "A GUIDE TO PLATO," DIRECTOR, LABOR TEMPLE SCHOOL

Cloth, 577 pages, 6¼ x 9¼, 21 illustrations $5.00

ACCLAIMED BY book-critics, book-creators, book-sellers, and book-buyers as the long-awaited humanization of philosophy, THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY looms up as one of the genuinely distinguished books of the year—a work of enduring excellence.

Here philosophy is not dismembered and card-indexed for pedants, but "clothed in the living form of genius." To read Dr. Durant's lucid book is an intellectual excursion to high places.

THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY presents the lives and opinions of

Socrates	Spencer
Plato	Nietzsche
Aristotle	Bergson
Bacon	Croce
Spinoza	Russell
Kant	Santayana
Voltaire	James
Schopenhauer	Dewey

A few representative comments on THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY are here appended:

"Here is a book to delight the heart."—The Saturday Review of Literature.

"Thoroughly scholarly, thoroughly useful, human and readable."—Professor John Dewey.

"I had no idea philosophy could be so readable. . . . Will Durant is sparkling. He writes as brilliantly as Sainte Beuve does in his portraits. He sees philosophy as the expression of a personality. The book is spiced with anecdote, well integrated in the tale."—Harry Hansen, The New York World.

"I am delighted with THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY, by Will Durant. I picked it up thinking that I would be searching among dust and dead bones. I found to my delight that I was dealing with live human beings. He certainly has humanized the story of these men who have had so much to do in shaping all our lives."—John B. Watson, author of "Behaviorism."

"Plato, Aristotle and Socrates have been little more to me than names. And now I read from this fine, fresh book and it's all as exciting as a news report of a first class trial down in the Criminal Courts Building. And I can lie propped up by pillows, and drink pure fruit juices and smoke, and eat apples, while philosophy drives up to my very bedside and spreads out its treasures."—Heywood Broun, New York World.

"I am a doctor philosophiae and I have read philosophical treatises all my life and I never understood a word about whatever the learned professors were trying to prove. Now at last I have a book—THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY, by Will Durant—that has told me what I always wanted to know and never quite could discover.

. . . After 44 years of faithful plowing through unreadable stuff I got hold of THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY, by Will Durant, and I hasten to recommend it. . . ." —Hendrik Willem Van Loon.

"Fascinating. . . . A week with THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY is easily worth a year with an ordinary professor."—Stuart P. Sherman.

"Brings that refreshment to the general reader that was so notable in the writing of William James. . . . Dr. Durant shows himself as a biographer with something of the gifts of Mr. Lytton Strachey."—The N. Y. Times Book Review.

"It is a magnificent book, THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY —the reading of which has given me a unique pleasure; it is the only book on philosophy I have ever been able to read from cover to cover without getting mad or tired."— George A. Dorsey, author of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings."

"I know better with each page what I dimly knew before, that I have needed this book for many years. I have been familiar since my student days with the Webers, Windelbands, Falckenbergs, and other handbooks, no doubt of great value, but usually a thick translation from a thicker German. This is indeed a 'story,' the story of the human being as thinker, the profoundest story that our race can tell. The book should find a place in the schools, but it is first of all a book for the general reader, who will find, if he does not already know it, that philosophy belongs not exclusively to the professors and technical scholars but is the concern of everybody, full of wonder and delight."— John Macy, author of "The Story of the World's Literature."

A MILLION AND ONE NIGHTS

THE HISTORY OF THE MOTION PICTURE

by Terry Ramsaye

2 volumes, boxed, 500 pages each, 6¼ x 9⅜, 94 illustrations $10.00
2 volumes, pre-publication de luxe limited edition, autographed $75.00
(See special notes on pages 6 and 7)

In the words of The New York World, which devoted a full-page leading article in its editorial section to the advance proofs of this book, the screen's best thriller has turned out to be its own history.

Thirty-seven years ago there were no motion pictures, and in chronicling their origin, their spectacular sweep over the present generation, and their fabulous manifestations, as art and industry, Terry Ramsaye has written the epic of the Celluloid Age.

Thomas A. Edison, after reading the manuscript, characterized A Million and One Nights as a monumental work, and in recognition of Ramsaye's exhaustive researches carried on for more than six months at an expenditure of close to 50,000 dollars, Ramsaye was engaged to write the article on the history of the motion picture for the next edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Because it gives the first authentic and complete account of the motion picture, without press-agentry, A Million and One Nights makes exciting reading. It reveals the larger story and the greater romance behind the fanfare of the picture players and the gossip of the studios. It tells the untold tales of the stars and the secrets of the star makers.

Here are melodrama and humor, sinister struggle and flamboyant slapstick, experiments, escapades, and the evolution of an art form for the millions.

Consider, for example, these two typical episodes, condensed from Terry Ramsaye's colorful narrative:

In 1891 Edison decided to patent his motion picture camera. "Shall I make the usual applications in Great Britain and Europe?" the attorney asked.

"How much will it cost?" Edison asked.

"About $150," replied the lawyer.

Edison waved away the suggestion.

"It isn't worth it," he remarked.

One morning Lewis J. Selznick, film millionaire, woke to find there was a revolution in Russia. He called a secretary to his bedside and dictated a cablegram to the Czar:

NICHOLAS ROMANOFF
PETROGRAD, RUSSIA
WHEN I WAS A POOR BOY IN KIEV SOME OF YOUR POLICE WERE NOT KIND TO ME AND MY PEOPLE STOP I CAME TO AMERICA AND PROSPERED STOP NOW HEAR WITH REGRET YOU ARE OUT OF JOB OVER THERE STOP FEEL NO ILLWILL WHAT YOUR POLICE DID SO IF YOU WILL COME NEW YORK CAN GIVE YOU FINE POSITION ACTING IN PICTURES STOP SALARY NO OBJECT STOP REPLY MY EXPENSE STOP REGARDS YOU AND FAMILY.
SELZNICK
NEW YORK

In A Million and One Nights, Terry Ramsaye shows the motion picture as the great common denominator of the arts, with sex and combat as its elemental instincts. The history of the motion picture, thus recorded by an extraordinarily well-equipped investigator and chronicler, who has had years of experience in every phase of the pictures himself, is essentially a human story. Its dramatis personae range from A to Z—literally from Aristotle (who made scientific observations on moving shadows) to Zukor, monarch of the present motion picture empire.

"Here romance and science," writes Ramsaye, "come blithely down the centuries, bringing us the art of the screen and pictures that live. Among the retainers, we shall find philosophers, savants and priests, gamblers, adventurers and cut-throats, noblemen, gentlemen, and commoners, wise men and fools—all of the motley of life. . . ."

Note: It is extremely difficult to suggest the magnitude and the intimate, picturesque, romantic quality of A MILLION AND ONE NIGHTS in a brief catalogue description. To do so more adequately, the publishers have prepared four separate publications describing this extraordinary addition to true Americana:

(1) A sixteen-page brochure setting forth in considerable detail the spirit and scope of the book, and reproducing Thomas A. Edison's prefatory endorsement, in fac-simile.

(2) A thirty-two page booklet giving the principal chapter headings and sub-titles from the table of contents.

(3) An eight-page folder reproducing some of the half-tone illustrations with which the text is lavishly embellished, and

(4) A booklet for book-sellers indicating the many-sided and striking appeal of "A Million and One Nights" to large groups of readers.

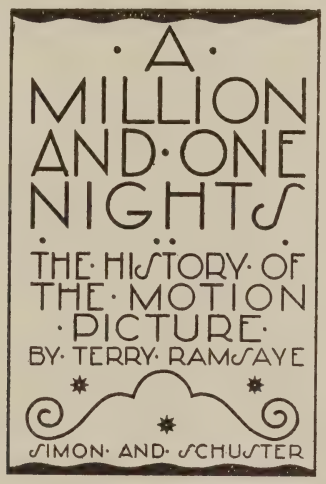
Any or all of these leaflets will gladly be sent by the publishers on request.

Special Note: The most eminent individuals of the motion picture, including Messrs. Zukor, Hays, Lasky, Loew, De Mille, Belasco, Neilan, Fox, Blackton, and others, paid $60, or—after the release date—$75 for the de luxe, limited edition autographed by the author and by Thomas A. Edison. Of this edition only 327 numbered copies were printed, of which 317 were available for advance subscription. Because of its rarity and unique historical and professional value, the price of this de luxe edition is naturally going higher than the $75 figure, being subject to the law of supply and demand.

The $10 edition, also in two volumes, sumptuously printed, bound, and boxed, contains exactly the same text, the same pictures, the same number of pages as the $75 limited pre-publication edition. Although of necessity bound and printed somewhat less luxuriously, the $10 edition is itself a de luxe production, with typography and format in every way worthy of the subject, and of enduring and harmonious craftsmanship. Both the $75 and the $10 edition were printed by the Vail Ballou Press, Binghamton, New York, and bound by the Plimpton Press, Norwood, Massachusetts.



NONE BUT THE BRAVE

A Novel by Arthur Schnitzler
Translated by Richard L. Simon

Cloth, 125 pages, 4½ x 7¼	$1.25
Paper cover, 125 pages, 4½ x 7¼	$0.75

Our hero—Gustl is his name—is one of those Austrian lieutenants who is forever waiting to be insulted.

What more natural then, when an insult comes his way?

The story opens with Gustl at an oratorio, bored to death by the music, and speculating on Anti-Semitism, Music, Women, Cigars, and tomorrow's duel with the doctor. Finally the concert comes to a close.

Aha! Another insult. It's incredible: a rather rough baker shoves him. More than that—he grasps our hero's sword and threatens to break it in two.

What can the Austrian lieutenant do about it? What does our hero do about it?

The answer to the latter is in this profoundly diverting story—done in dramatic monologue—Schnitzler at his best.

None But the Brave created a wave of controversy and discussion throughout Germany and Austria when it was originally published. There was no question about the brilliance of Schnitzler's literary style, but military people and civilians took sides on the questions of etiquette involved. The book broke into the news of Europe just as "What Price Glory" did here.

A TOUCH OF EARTH

by Lella Warren

Cloth, 320 pages, 5⅛ x 7½ $2.50

". . . he is all fault
Who hath no fault at all;
For who loves me, must have a touch of earth."

When this novel came to the office, it was sent for a first reading to an unusually discerning editor who is himself a novelist of note. Here is the report that came back the next morning:

"This is the best novel I've ever read in manuscript. It is a splendidly made, poignantly tender, and poetically restrained story of a girl who has a profound sense of beauty. It's recommended heartily for publication. Read it. It got me!"

A TOUCH OF EARTH is the story of Jick Kent—a girl of the younger generation, if you like, but not the younger generation known to Mrs. Grundy, nor yet to F. Scott Fitzgerald. She is the younger generation in its subtler, finer aspects, in its love of life, in its craving for beauty.

Jick Kent is real. She is real in that ineffable magnetism that draws men on, real in her hunger for things she cannot reach. The vague, stabbing hurt of beauty, which is Jick's religion, becomes articulate in these pages . . . dramatic, inevitable, unforgettable.

LENZ ON BRIDGE

by Sidney S. Lenz

Cloth, 275 pages, 5 x 7⅜ $2.00

THOSE ON the inside of auction bridge have awaited for years the announcement of this book. For, if there is one man who may be called the champion bridge player of the world, it is Sidney S. Lenz.

Two international bridge tournaments have been held. In each one Mr. Lenz was captain of the winning team. As tokens of his ability at bridge, Mr. Lenz possesses 525 medals and trophies which he won in tournament play.

Sidney S. Lenz has rightly been called "the court of last resort" on all bridge problems. Wilbur Whitehead says of him, "He is undoubtedly the most remarkable card player the world has ever seen."

All of Mr. Lenz's vast and uncanny knowledge of the game is in this book. It is literally bridge from A to Z—bridge for the tyro and bridge for the dollar-a-point expert.

Bridge players in all parts of the world who have read Mr. Lenz's bridge articles in the newspapers, and have listened in to his bridge talks over WEAF, with enjoyment as well as profit to themselves, know what sound and invaluable guidance awaits them in this authoritative book.

Note: The 1926 revised rules of Auction Bridge are of course included in the book.

BRONX BALLADS

Words and Music of a Few Representative Folk Songs Collected, Edited and Introduced

by Robert A. Simon

Illustrated by Herbert Jopke-Hejo

Full cloth, flexible binding, 64 pages, 7¼ x 9½ $1.50

CIVILIZATION, as we like to think of it, is wiping away the picturesque Bronx of song and story, but the editor of this book has collected its fine old songs and equipped them with accompaniments that approximate the simple zither obbligati to which they were originally intoned.

And what a cross-section of the human comedy these songs are! Here are Rabelaisian hilarity and poignant family tragedy. We meet the divinely utilitarian Ginsbergs, the brilliant Sadie and the heroic Wellington Goldberg.

These songs, privately sung, have overwhelmed such specialists as F. P. A., Heywood Broun, Jerome Kern, Ben Bernie, Ernest Schelling, Kurt Schindler, and even the publishers. The piano parts can be played by practically anybody.

This book opens flat and fits in the pocket. It is physically possible to stage a house party without it, but it won't be nearly so much fun.

SWEET AND LOW

A NOVEL OF CONTEMPORARY LIFE

by Liggett Reynolds

Cloth, 120 pages, 9¾ x 3¾, illustrated $1.50

WHO DOES not recall the beautiful verses of the poet (later the poet-laureate) Alfred, Lord Tennyson:

"Sweet and low,
Sweet and low,
And a good song ringing clear!"

Such is the theme of this new Novel of Contemporary Life by a new Author, Liggett Reynolds. It is a tale of human passions in the Far East. They don't write such English nowadays. Who that reads SWEET AND LOW ever will forget the elder Cato, Sir Launcelot, Scheherazade, or Colonel Pendennis, all of whom are drawn by the author with a fidelity that has made them household words, like abderitic or duodenal?

In presenting Liggett Reynolds, B.A., sportsman, trapper, ferry-boat stoker, ranch cook and endocrinologist, we are simply adding to the roster of illustrious American writers another great name. For all you know, SWEET AND LOW may win the Pulitzer prize.

A de luxe pre-publication edition of SWEET AND LOW, autographed by Mr. Reynolds, limited to 999 numbered copies, printed on a specially imported rag paper, is not being offered.

WORDS AND MUSIC

A BOOK OF BURLESQUES

by Sigmund Spaeth

AUTHOR OF "BARBER SHOP BALLADS," "THE COMMON SENSE OF MUSIC"

Cloth, 64 pages, text and music; foreword by "Roxy" $1.50

In his lectures, recitals, radio-broadcasting and other contributions to American gayety, Sigmund Spaeth has invariably "stopped the show" with these gorgeous parodies of "Jack and Jill," "The Great American Opera," "Yes, We Have No Bananas" and "Yankee Doodle."

After every private and public performance there is a clamorous request for the words and music. Here they are.

"Jack and Jill" is presented as it might have been written in oratorical version, in grand opera, by Franz Schubert, by Wagner and by other composers.

The parodies are not only side-splittingly funny: they are based on sound musical scholarship and, although primarily entertaining, they afford an admirable method of studying the various schools of composition from Palestrina to George Gershwin.

So amazingly clever are these burlesques that even the most erudite and the most reverent music-lover will applaud, approve—and join in the chorus!

THE PRINCE OF WAILS

by Pauline Felix Geffen

Illustrated by C. E. Millard

Bound in boards, 64 pages, 6¼ x 7¾, three colors $3.00

THE CHARM of this book is the charm of utterly fresh and blithesome verses written for real children by a real poet.

These lilting, romping, somersaulting stanzas have an intimacy, a deliciously genuine flavor all their own.

The author wrote the verses for her own children. There was absolutely no thought of publication. For this reason the bookish banalities of standardized children's poems are absolutely absent from these pages.

I love your hugs
I love your kisses
I love you to hold
My wee hands and feet
But more than your hugs
And more than your kisses
I love to eat,
I love to eat.

Enchantment is added to the verses by the superb imagery and color of Claude Millard's decorative illustrations throughout the book. As an artist in this field and a creator of striking posters, Millard is an acknowledged genius, and he has caught the spirit of the verse, just as the verses have caught the spirit of childhood. Roger and Joan, who inspired the verses (even when they tried to devour their mother's note-book) are friends of Millard, too, and that adds just the indefinable nuance to the charm of these pages.

HALES POSTER BUILDER STORY BOOK

Self cover, 16 pages, 10½ x 13½, five colors $1.00

HERE IS a book to delight a child's heart. The old Mother Goose rhymes appear here resplendent in five colors and three dimensions.

The Hales three-dimension posters became famous overnight when they were first used for advertising purposes in the Fifth Avenue window display of a celebrated department store. They are unlike any other posters or colored illustrations: they seem to live and move, and the color effects are more brilliant than are possible in any other medium.

So great has been the success of these posters that Mr. Hales devised a toy for children based on this idea. The sale of these toys has been really tremendous and now Mr. Hales is adopting the same principle of three-dimension illustrations in this book, which also contains some outline pages which the children can color themselves.

The brilliant coloring, the delightful simplicity, the genuine originality and the attractive low price give promise of a tremendous popularity for the Hales Layer Poster Book.

This is the something new, something beautiful, something genuinely worthwhile which children crave, and parents recommend.

THE THEATRE OF GEORGE JEAN NATHAN

by Isaac Goldberg

Cloth, 250 pages, 5½ x 8⅛, illustrated $3.00

THE biographer of H. L. Mencken and Havelock Ellis now turns his pen and his X-ray on George Jean Nathan—not only on the man himself, but on his entire theatre of operations—the stage of the world and the dramatic stage, life before and behind the footlights.

The first half of the book discloses the essential Nathan in terse, colorful, anecdotal style.

The second half consists of the intimate and revelatory correspondence between Nathan and such figures as Gordon Craig and Eugene O'Neill, letters as interesting as they are important; the scenarios of Mencken-Nathan unborn compositions; the complete text of the Nathan play, "The Eternal Mystery;" and other uniquely diverting and significant documents. Collectors of Mencken and Nathan items will find this book of real first-edition value.

Here such characters as John Galsworthy, Arthur Bingham Walkley, William Archer, George M. Cohan, Lord Dunsany, Frank Harris, James Huneker, Theodore Dreiser, H. L. Mencken, Eugene O'Neill, Gordon Craig, Max Reinhardt and others talk, correspond, and generally carry on with Nathan, both before the curtain and behind the scenes. A more exhilarating assemblage of twentieth-century talkers, letter-writers, and play-boys it would be hard to organize.

JUAREZ AND MAXIMILIAN

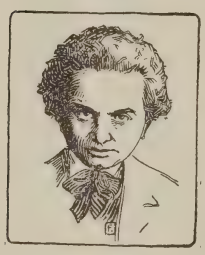
A PLAY IN THREE PHASES AND AN EPILOGUE

by Franz Werfel

AUTHOR OF "VERDI, A NOVEL OF THE OPERA" AND "GOAT SONG." TRANSLATED BY RUTH LANGNER

Published for The Theatre Guild

Octavo, 250 pages, bound in paper	$1.00
Octavo, 250 pages, bound in cloth	1.75



JUAREZ AND MAXIMILIAN, which is scheduled to be one of the Theatre Guild's most ambitious productions, achieved an extraordinary triumph when directed by Max Reinhardt last year. Like "Verdi, A Novel of the Opera," another work by Franz Werfel, the play won both the acclaim of the critics and the applause of a wide public.

For JAUREZ AND MAXIMILIAN, Werfel was awarded, by a unanimous vote, the Austrian Grillparzer prize, which corresponds to the Pulitzer award here.

After the success of "Goat Song," another spectacular Theatre Guild production, and the publication of "Verdi," international critical attention was focused on this 35-year-old poet, playwright, and novelist, who is already being spoken of as a winner of the Nobel Prize.

JUAREZ AND MAXIMILIAN evinces again Werfel's superb sense of the theatre. To read it is a thrilling experience.

THE CROSS WORD PUZZLE BOOK

SIXTH SERIES

Edited by Prosper Buranelli, Margaret Petherbridge, and F. Gregory Hartswick

Cloth, 145 pages, 6¼ x 7¼, with Venus pencil and eraser $1.35

CARRYING ON the tradition of its many lusty predecessors, of which more than a million copies have already been sold in America and Great Britain, Cross Word Puzzle Book Number Six is literally published in response to public clamor.

The recent Cross Word Puzzle Championship Tournament, when Ruth Franc Von Phul, brilliantly out-manouvering all her challengers on a five-letter word meaning "lost Indian tribes," again won the Herald-Tribune Cup, proved beyond doubt that the mad pursuit of the Emu is due to go merrily on for years and years. . . .

On the best-seller lists from month to month, the latest Simon and Schuster cross word puzzle books hold their ground, like the Roc (if the printer is a cross word fan, he will know enough not to add the "k") of Gibraltar.

The Sixth Series maintains the unimpeachable standard of all the Buranelli-Hartswick-Petherbridge creations. It has the familiar Venus pencil coyly tucked away, as in the first million books—and for good measure the answers are thrown in.

See page 25 for the full list of Simon and Schuster Cross Word Puzzle Books.

ABBEY CLASSICS, THE.....Per Vol. 1.25

The raison d'être of THE ABBEY CLASSICS is the production of the numerous books of recognized merit, which at the present day are either no longer in print or else published in editions of such price as to place them out of the reach of the average man—books which, owing to changes in taste among past generations, have dropped out of sight, but which, by the revolution of time, are acceptable to modern readers if brought to their notice.

"We can remember no series of popular reprints which began as auspiciously as the Abbey Classics. None, we think, has been better produced and certainly none better selected."—Spectator.

	"Genius to concoct a gripping crime puzzle with labyrinthine twists and turns is not the only cartridge in J. S. Fletcher's gun. He also has a charm of style to beguile you and make you resolve to watch for fresh products of his pen, if you are not already a devoted Fletcherite. . . ."

	"Mr. Wallace deserves notice as the only writer who has satisfactorily succeeded in combining a love motive with his murders. He is as deft as the best of them at the plausible coincident and, like the most expert members of the profession, refuses to use chemical formulas as yet undiscovered or physical phenomena not known to science to help him out with his untanglings. To all of this he adds the faculty of making his heroine a person deeply under suspicion and yet one eminently likable. He has the conscience of a good craftsman, makes all the necessary explanations, ties everything up neatly at the end and leaves them all happy or unhappy according to their desserts."—Town and Country.

THE SPECTATOR

A Weekly Review of Insurance

Devoted to the interests of Life, Fire, Casualty, Liability, Surety and all other forms of insurance. Published weekly.

The Spectator is a live and progressive Insurance Journal, noted for its pungent and fearless discussion of all matters pertaining to the vast subject of insurance in every branch. It contains the latest and freshest insurance news from every quarter, bright and sparkling correspondence from the principal insurance centers of the country, comments on current insurance events of the day, and able discussions on the principles of Life, Fire, Casualty and Miscellaneous Insurance by practical expert authorities in their several lines.

A most valuable feature of The Spectator is the presentation from time to time of carefully prepared and voluminous Tabular Exhibits of the business of Life, Fire and Miscellaneous Insurance, usually in a comparative form, showing the business transactions and detailed experience of all companies for a series of years. These statistics are compiled by experts having no personal interest to serve, but are prepared solely for the purpose of analyzing the subject.

Educational features in The Spectator, covering respectively Life, Industrial, Fire, Casualty and Miscellaneous classes of insurance, have served to make The Spectator very popular with agents, because of their distinctly helpful and valuable character. They are printed each week as a separate department of the paper.

A very interesting feature of The Spectator consists of the Monthly Bulletins compiled by the Research Bureau of Insurance of The Spectator Company, and printed in The Spectator, and which are also issued separately as parts of The Insurance Year Book Service. One of these each month is devoted to fire insurance, and the other to casualty, surety and miscellaneous insurance.

The most eminent writers on insurance in its various forms are contributors to its columns, and the aim of its proprietors is to present the science of the insurance systems in vogue without prejudice to any and in fairness to all. It is in this spirit that Fire, Life, Industrial, Casualty and Miscellaneous Insurance Companies, Associations and Societies are treated without fear or favor. It also gives the current news from different insurance centers each week, and each number is an epitome of all matters pertaining to insurance affairs that are of interest to the profession at large.

A Service Bureau is maintained for the benefit of our subscribers, answering questions pertaining to the insurance business. As the largest publishers and importers of insurance works in the world, we have in our files a vast amount of data, and are thus in a position to be of inestimable value to our patrons.

By CHARLES D. LANIER, Sec'y and Treas. of the Review of Reviews

"In intervals of R. L. S., we read the galley proofs of Harry Worcester Smith's forthcoming book describing his sporting invasion of Westmeath, in Ireland, in 1912, when he took over his American hounds to hunt that country as Master—the only instance, I think, of the use of American hounds in the United Kingdom. He had thoughtfully sent us these advance proofs and they are worth mentioning because the very detailed and voluminous account of his Irish experiences form excellent instruction for any American foxhunter to hazard the Irish banks.

"The volume is always keenly enthusiastic and full of details useful to a sportsman, with now and then a story carrying the true Irish tang."

THE LOW COUNTRY SPEAKS

A Review of "Laguerre, a Gascon of the Black Border," "With Aesop Along the Black Border," "The Captain, Stories of the Black Border"

Hervey Allen, Co-Author of "Carolina Chansons", in The Saturday Review of Literature

The day when even the cultivated reading public confidently expected "The Great Comprehensive American Novel," which was to express the spirit of all these states, has probably passed along with other adolescent literary aspirations. Instead, and in spite of our ruthless standardization, America has wakened to herself by geographical sections. New England, The Hoosier County, and the various divisions of the West can now be dignified by author, book, and dialect. To these the development of the last half-decade has added another section, distinguished in cultural traditions and peculiar to itself ethnically and historically. This is the strip of territory stretching along the South Carolina sea-coast from Georgetown south of Beaufort, into Georgia, penetrating roughly a hundred miles inland, and known locally as the "Low Country." A section which Mr. Ambrose E. Gonzales of Columbia, S. C., whose books we are considering here, has aptly termed the "Black Border."

This romantic and unique section is now thoroughly vocal and awake to its literary possibilities. Some years ago Mr. Heyward and myself in the preface to our collaboration "Carolina Chansons" called attention to its inherent values. Since then, John Bennett writing from Charleston, has contributed his "Madame Margot," a legend of old Charleston, probably still the most colonial city in America; Julia Peterkin writing from Lang Syne Plantation near Columbia, S. C., has given us one of the best and most sympathetic studies of negro plantation life in a generation; Eola Willis has recently added her study of the "Charleston Stage in the 18th Century," replete with the facts and romance of the early American drama; DuBose Heyward in "Skylines and Horizons" has added worthily to his poetical interpretations of his native soil,—and Ambrose E. Gonzales in a series of four rapidly written books, "The Black Border," "The Captain," "With Aesop Along the Black Border," and "Laguerre, a Gascon of the Black Border" has reproduced the strange life of the Low Country with its peculiar and difficult Gullah dialect in a collection of pleasantly humorous stories of Negro characterizations, full of sympathy and pathos.

"Laguerre," the last of the series, may be taken as more or less typical of the others. "A gallant soldier of the Confederacy, formerly a wealthy Sea-Island cotton planter he (Laguerre) lived until about twenty years ago in a cottage on a war-ruined but once splendid plantation; planting a little, hunting now and then. . . . Educated in Paris before the war, and of distinguished Huguenot ancestry, he passionately loved France . . . and in his sensitive honor and courtly manners, and the great blond moustache and imperial worn à la Napoleon III, brought to Toogoodoo a touch of the second empire." Under the greenwood tree, the magnolia and the moss-draped live-oak, Laguerre set up his rural court, and as Justice of the Peace with a grand Gascon manner dispensed a lordly but withal kindly justice to the surrounding Negroes, finding in this compensation for the poverty and restrictions of his environment. The circumstances of the trials, conducted in Gullah, provided characters, jests, and plots for the author. And it is not straining a point to say that these are invariably whimsical, unexpected, and delightful.

"Aesop" and "The Captain" are also collections of short stories about the Negro, all written in the Gullah dialect of the Low Country, which is at once the joy and stumbling block of the reader. Gullah, probably a corruption of Angola, whence many of the Carolina Negroes were brought in the days of the slave-trader, is a pot-pourri of African, French, and English,—all of which have gone the way of least resistance in their reshaping on the thick and lazy lips of the blacks. It is a dialect in the true sense of the word, distinguished by a guttural-quacking sound, and the use of a flat "A." Yard, for instance, is pronounced like "Y" placed before "add." There are also many distinctive words.

Mr. Gonzales is peculiarly fitted to write of the Low Country and about its people in their own patois. He has long lived among them in intimate contact with both Blacks and Whites as editor and owner of The State, one of the few newspapers of his section that has fought consistently for better social, political, and literary standards, even when their upholding meant personal danger. His volumes are published by the State Company of Columbia, S. C., and are well printed, carefully proof-read, well bound, and furnished with attractive wrappers.

Even at this writing it is safe to say that Mr. Gonzales' books are next in order of literary succession to "Uncle Remus" in the plantation tradition and they seem destined to take a by no means dusty place upon the shelf of Americana.

THE BLACK BORDER'S HISTORIAN

HERSCHEL BRICKELL in the New York Evening Post Literary Review

To those who read Mr. Gonzales' delightful book a year or two ago, "The Black Border," the news that he has carried on the tradition to the extent of three more volumes will be most welcome. I know of no one living who can surpass this South Carolinian as a writer of Negro dialect, and he is master of a lingo that would stump any one but a born philologist.

The Negroes in his stories are Gullahs, Gullah probably being a corruption of Angola, whence the forebears of these blacks were brought to the Carolina and Georgia lowlands and the islands that lie off the coast of the two states. The Gullah speech is at once the chiefest charm of Mr. Gonzales' stories and the greatest barrier to their general enjoyment. It presents difficulties that may be surmounted, however, with a little patience and the copious use of the excellent glossary which is a part of "The Black Border."

Once the key is found, the way is open to the enjoyment of some of the most genuinely amusing stories that have ever been written of the Negro race in America. Mr. Gonzales writes mostly of other days when the plantation tradition had not been modified by the hard demands of a mechanistic civilization; he recreates with astonishing verisimilitude the life and times of the post Confederate war period.

When he is not using the Gullah dialect, a speech as rich in quaint turns and picturesque, racy, homely phrases as any I know, he gives us a prose as mellow, as gracious and as rich in color as the Southern autumns of which he writes so happily in "Laguerre."

In this book his central figure is a justice of the peace of Huguenot lineage, who likes nothing better than the sound of his own sonorous voice as he lays down his rough and ready law to the Negroes in his woodland court. Around this temple of justice, roofed over with the blue sky, and around the domestic and social difficulties of the Gullah folk under Laguerre's jurisdiction, Mr. Gonzales has woven one excellent story after another, amusing in no artificial way, but each a genuine study of character in a natural setting.

In "The Captain" are more tales of the Gullahs, in particular one connected story of the parceling of a large plantation among the Negroes which contains the detailed account of the building of a log cabin, a priceless bit of architectural lore. This story is an epic of man's battle with nature and his gradual victory, the fruits of which were lost in this case because the Negroes were lured away by the prospect of work in phosphate mines.

"With Aesop Along the Black Border" is made up of the familiar fables in the Gullah dialect, and very fresh they seem in their new garments. Here, as elsewhere, Mr. Gonzales displays a really amazing grasp of a strange patois, which he writes naturally and fluently.

The Black Border is indeed fortunate to have so fine a historian as Mr. Gonzales. These tales, which he tosses off with such apparent ease and with very evident pleasure to himself, will become in time invaluable records of a vanished period and a passing people.
